

Satellite Design Language

Johannes Gross, Research associate, University of Stuttgart

What can Systems Engineers learn from Satellite Design?

In this talk, interesting findings on the analysis of systems and their components are presented. By means of a design language it is shown, how routine work can be automated. The engineer of the future will do less tedious routine work and have the means to answer system level questions profoundly.

*To attend please contact until 11.1.2013 Michael Johnson
Email: mike.johnson@incose.ch - www.ssse.ch*

Monday 14.1.2013 | 18.00 - 20.00

RUAG Space - Schaffhauserstr. 580 - 8052 Zürich